“Violence against women is a global human rights issue that affects everyone; men and women, husbands and wives, sons and daughters.

All of us can and must play a role by changing attitudes, speaking out, and acting to stop this human rights abuse.”

700 Women every single day is 700 too many. We have the power to protect women and girls from sexual and domestic violence. We must reauthorize the Violence Against Women Act to make it happen. Your support of the 700women.org campaign will help us educate and activate hundreds of thousands of people over the next few months! Since Amnesty International receives no government funding, everything depends on individuals like you: not only signing the petition and spreading the word, but also making a donation. Please help us stop violence against women forever. Make a contribution today.
